

7 Fun Businesses Started Just for Kids

By Brittney Helmrich, Business News Daily Staff Writer

From cooking classes and acting lessons to specialized fitness clubs and science programs, there are plenty of businesses out there targeted to kids. These companies not only give children and young adults something fun to do after school or when school's out for the summer, but also help them learn valuable skills, develop their creativity, improve their health and further their education in other ways – keeping parents everywhere happy, too.

Here are seven successful businesses made just for kids.

Young Chefs Academy

Young Chefs Academy (YCA) offers cooking classes to children so they can learn their way around the kitchen in a safe, creative environment. Along with giving lessons on how to make food, the company's kid-friendly cooking classes teach children everything from menu planning and table setting to etiquette and kitchen safety. YCA offers camp, field trip and birthday party services as well. The franchise has U.S. locations in California, Georgia, Louisiana, New York, New Jersey, Ohio, Texas and Virginia, as well as international locations in the Dominican Republic, India, Indonesia and more.
