

Andrew Vidich Ph.D. is an award-winning author, educator and transformational speaker in the fields of religion and spirituality. Andrew has taught courses on the nature and experience of religion, meditation, and death and dying at the college level and frequently offers programs and lectures at Kripalu Center for Yoga and Health and New York Open Center. He presents seminars and trainings at educational and religious institutions, conferences, radio and TV shows worldwide. Dr. Vidich is a founding member of the council of trustees of The Temple of Understanding, a global interfaith organization, which promotes understanding and cooperation across all religions and faiths.

Andrew Vidich has practiced meditation for over 45 years. Both he and Art Stein have participated, either as a presenter and/or facilitator, in each of the five global Parliaments of the World's Religions held between 1993-2015.

Andrew and his wife Tamir live in upstate New York.

