Meridian Stress Assessment

Are You Experiencing Any of These?

- Allergies
- Digestive problems
- Fatigue
- Fibromyalgia
- Foul breath
- Frequent illness
- Headaches
- Irritability
- Joint pains
- Mental confusion or exhaustion
- Nausea
- Respiratory problems
- Ringing in the ears
- Sinus problems
- Skin conditions

Meridian Stress Assessment (MSA) is used to conduct a comprehensive evaluation of a person's energetic health and balance. This process involves measuring electrical conductivity at responsive points (meridian points) on the skin - typically on the hands and feet. The locations of the test point generally correspond to those of acupuncture points. These measurements are recorded to help provide a profile of a patient's present condition.

According to European medical research, acupuncture points are related to the body's organs and organ systems. Major groups of points are connected through channels, or meridians. Twenty of these meridians begin or end on the hands and feet.

As a patient moves toward or away from health, the condition of any particular organ or system can be sensed along the meridians at representative points. As a result, stress associated with the corresponding organs can be surveyed using the indicated points.

After the initial measurements have been taken and recorded, the results can be reviewed. If stress values are above or below equilibrium, the System's extensive computer database will allow the practitioner to consider a wide range of possibilities that might help the patient regain a healthy balance. The MSAS allows consideration of thousands of herbal, homeopathic, and nutritional products.

Note: Homeopathic remedies are designed to stimulate the body's own healing actions in a manner similar to vaccinations. Homeopathy is a system of medicine that utilizes tiny amounts of natural substances, such as herbs, bark, seeds, berries, flowers, minerals and animal matter. Unlike pharmaceutical drugs, they do not create side effects.

Overall, an MSA provides a completely non-invasive method for gaining valuable information about the body's vital functions. The primary objective of this procedure is to disclose patterns of stress and to provide feedback for use in a program to help restore each system and meridian to an appropriate balance. MSA does not provide a medical diagnosis.

Today these types of systems are being used by over 40,000 medical doctors in Europe and Canada, and an increasing number of American practitioners.

This fascinating and valuable tool is the result of the early work of:

Dr. Reinhold Voll

In the early 1950s, Reinhold Voll, a German medical doctor, developed a prototype electronic testing device for finding acupuncture points electrically. He was successful in finding acupuncture points and demonstrating that these points, known to Chinese acupuncturists for millennia, had a different resistance to a tiny electrical current passed through the body, than did the adjacent tissues. Many other researchers have also verified that electrical conductance at the acupuncture points is significantly greater than the surrounding tissue. Dr. Voll then began a lifelong search to identify correlations between disease states and changes in the electrical resistance of the various acupuncture points. He thought that if he could identify electrical changes in certain acupuncture points associated with certain diseases, then he might be able to identify those diseases more easily, or earlier, when treatment intervention was likely to be more effective. Dr. Voll was successful in identifying many acupuncture points related to specific conditions and published a great deal of information about using acupuncture points diagnostically. (Until Voll’s work, these points had been used mainly for treatment). He found, for example, that patients with lung cancer had abnormal readings on the acupuncture points referred to as lung points. Changes also occurred in the electrical conductance of the acupuncture points supplying musculoskeletal structures that are inflamed.

Dr. Voll discovered that certain acupuncture points showed abnormal readings when subjects were reacting allergically. He made several serendipitous discoveries related to “allergy” testing. He noted some unusual readings on certain acupuncture points when a patient merely had a bottle of medicine in his pocket. He could move the bottle away from the person and consistently get a different reading or reaction than when the bottle was in the person’s pocket. At first he was baffled as to how a closed bottle of medicine outside the body could affect the acupuncture readings. It was even more baffling when he discovered that the glass bottle of medicine could change the readings when it was in contact anywhere along the closed electric circuit involved with the testing procedure.

Dr. Voll and his colleagues then began work to identify the nature of this strange phenomena. They inserted a metal plate into the circuit and demonstrated that many substances that prelude changes in acupuncture point readings when ingested could produce the same changes when placed on the plate (even in closed glass bottles). They assumed that there must be some kind of electromagnetic energy being emitted from the substances, and that these energy fields somehow traveled along the electric circuit to the body (perhaps like the energy waves representing a person's voice travels along the electric circuitry of a telephone line).

Meridian Stress Assessment may be used to screen:

1. All the systems, organs and functions of the body.

2. For allergies and sensitivities to foods, plants, animals, environments, inhalants and most anything we meet in our daily life.
3. Testing imbalances to see if nutritional products such as vitamins, minerals, enzymes, essential fatty acids ("EFA"s), proteins, hormones and/or homeopathy can bring these back into balance.

4. The quality of teeth, dental conditions, dental materials and compatible products.

5. Sensitivity or a weakness to heavy metals, toxic products and pollutants, such as herbicides, pesticides and insecticides.

6. The MSA may determine the causative factors for your specific disease process.

One of the biggest advantages of using Meridian Stress Assessment is the ability to test responses or reactions to supplementation without having to rely solely on trial and error. In addition, it can help identify optimal treatment dosages.

Dental testing: BioMeridian testing can assist the dentist in locating imbalances in the teeth and gums as well as testing for compatibility of materials used; identifying clinical and pre-clinical problems; heavy metal poisoning; complications; surgical procedures; monitoring surgeries; viral, bacterial, fungal, and parasitic implications; root canals; cavities; dental toxins; systemic relationships. Patients with long-standing health problems often find that the problems originate in the mouth. Meridian Stress Assessment can help identify which tooth or teeth are imbalanced and need correction.

The National Institute of Health concluded:

“In clinical practice Bio-Energetic Medicine (EDS) offers the possibility of more economically effective evaluations and non-invasive therapies for health problems, including those considered intractible (capable of violating the body) or recalcitrant (not responsive) to conventional treatments.”

Here's what others have said about Bio Meridian Stress Assessment Testing.

"The overall feeling of my family, now that we've had our Bio Meridian testing, is incredible. We have answers now, we're seeing results, we're happier and we're healthier. I feel that now we can be a normal family."
Linda H.

"It has had a huge impact on my life. I am very grateful for what it has done for me."
Jill R.

"I can't go any other way because I have really seen results. There's no way you can think about going to a physician who doesn't believe in a technology that helps so much."
Maggie W.

"As a company, we are saving money and reducing our medical expenses. Our employees are feeling better physically and therefore are providing better productivity and lower absenteeism. All this with the Bio Meridian technology. It's been miraculous, it's truly amazing. I would encourage anyone to look at it and consider it."
Doug Y.

"It has been miraculous for me."
Barb S.

"There is no doubt that the 21st century has arrived and any practitioners who utilize this technology will find themselves in demand and practicing medicine very successfully."
Bruce H Shelton, MD, MD(H), DHom

"Over the past several years, I have used this technology to help hundreds of patients solve their health problems. It's an excellent tool that has helped eliminate the guesswork."
Bryon R., DC
