A Studio Like None Other

"I can do things you cannot, you can do things, I cannot; together we can do great things."

Mother Theresa

Dear Yogis,

This weekend, Rhiannon offers two workshops, both bringing connections with others. Make special memories with your little ones at Family Yoga, 12:30 pm on Sunday, February 12th or try Partner Yoga at 1:30pm on Sunday. Come with someone or partner with a new yogi friend! If you have been wanting someone to try yoga, Partner Yoga could just be that fun way to get them on a mat!

Read more below for new teachers, new classes and new yoga styles now being offered at Washington Yoga Center!

Looking forward to seeing you at the studio!

New Class - Chair Yoga

Chair Yoga is now being offered on Thursdays, 2pm - 3pm. Do you know someone who could benefit from yoga but the up and down on a yoga mat is too much? Chair Yoga just might be the right fit!

In chair yoga, the chair takes the place of your yoga mat. This is a perfect class for anyone with challenges that feel the support of a chair would allow them to experience the physical and mental benefits that yoga provides. As students move through poses, they can stay seated or stand using the chair for support.

All levels of experience are able to participate in chair yoga!

"Intentions compressed into words enfold magical power."

Deepak Chopra

Do you wonder what the purpose of setting an intention is in class?

Setting an intention can give your practice a focus, something to bring your mind back to when you feel the chatter creep in, or when you start to wonder when you can stop holding triangle.

Even off your mat, you can come back to your intention. You can read more at, "The Power Behind Setting an Intention in Yoga".

Be sure to check out our new library!

See a book you want to read? Just sign it out!

Or, relax at the studio and read!
